The COFAR / OMB has asked us to circulate the following survey (click on the link below to access the survey).

<https://survey.max.gov/index.php/661947/lang-en>

We are not certain how the results will be used, but it may be an opportunity to emphasize 2 or 3 areas of concern related to the Uniform Guidance (e.g., micro-threshold level for procurements, establishment of a consistent 120-day uniform close-out model, etc.)

Below is the note from COFAR / OMB introducing the survey:

Colleagues –

A new tool was recently posted to the Council on Financial Assistance Reform (COFAR) webpage for non-Federal stakeholders to provide voluntary feedback on the Uniform Guidance’s overall impact on burden and waste, fraud, and abuse, and adequacy of opportunities to engage in the process. Responses received will be reviewed by the COFAR to help evaluate the extent to which the Uniform Guidance achieves the COFAR’s goals, and to identify opportunities to improve. This feedback tool will be available through March 17, 2015.

This tool (and other information about the Uniform Guidance) is available on the COFAR site at: <https://cfo.gov/cofar/> in the section titled “Measuring the Impact of the Uniform Guidance”. OMB encourages you to circulate this opportunity to non-Federal entities who may be interested in providing their feedback.

Thank you as well to those of you who submitted formal comments on the interim final rule on regulations.gov. We have received your comments and look forward to reviewing them with the COFAR.

Best,
Rhea
